EDITOR'S NOTE

Christmastime is here!

When December rolls around, I can't help thinking about Christmas. From childhood until now, I love pulling out the tree and decorating it. As an adult, I enjoy making decorations, adding to my extensive collection. During this favorite time of the year, I relish the handmade items, most of which carry sweet memories. They all fill my home with the beauty and special feelings of the season, creating an extra warm and inviting atmosphere.

With grown children and grandchildren, Christmas Day may or may not bring people into my home. Often, we celebrate as a family on another day of the month. I learned long ago to share my daughters with their spouses' families or allow them to enjoy the day at home. Personally, I enjoy sleeping in on Christmas morning, waking to a leisurely breakfast and time of reflection. Rather than feeling lonely, I embrace the solitude, knowing I have a variety of options for later that day. Like many things in life, the way I approach Christmas comes from a conscious decision. When I sit back and reflect on the true meaning of the day, any sadness of being alone washes away in the awe and mystery of a tiny baby in a manger.

This year, as you prepare for Christmas, perhaps you will spend the day and season alone, or so wrapped in activities you wish for a moment alone and still. Whatever the season brings, love lives at the heart of Christmas. When we remember that and give away love, we're never truly alone, and we can rejoice.

Have a glorious holiday season!

P.S. The publisher and staff of NOW Magazines would like to wish you and your family a very Merry Christmas and the happiest of holiday seasons!

TRIDS RADION AND RADION At Home With Janice Campbell

— By Lisa Bell

Janice Campbell grew up in Loomis, California, a small town in a farm and ranch area above Sacramento. "I call it God's country," she said. Her son moved from Indiana to Texas, and her daughter plans to join them in the Lone Star State. In March 2018, Janice traveled with her daughter to visit. While spending two weeks with her son, she knew within three days she wanted to live in Texas. Visiting Burleson, she liked the town. Selling her house, she made the move on June 5, 2018. "I knew it was where I wanted to be," Janice shared. "I've met so many wonderful people and made great friends."

In moving, she brought a time-honored tradition with her. "I started when I ended up on my own," she reminisced. An avid lover of Christmas, she had little decor at the time, but to celebrate, she made a lot of food and opened her home to her postal co-workers. "I kept it open all day. The event became an annual celebration as it grew to include church friends and others. One year, she had about 100 people show up. Over time, her number of decorations grew until they filled her home.

The decorations and tradition now live in Burleson with Janice. Around October each year, she pulls out cookbooks and plans the event, selecting 10-15 homemade candies and 10-15 desserts she will make. All year long, she saves money, so she can welcome her friends and family to celebrate Christmas with her.

Although she may put out a few villages, she waits until the day after Thanksgiving to begin decorating for Christmas. It takes days to finish, but every room in the house contains a reminder of the season. "It's my way of celebrating Jesus' birthday," she said with a contagious smile.

Each room contains a tree and theme. The master bedroom features postal decor. When she delivered mail, many people on her route gave these items to her. While she retired years ago, she cherishes the reminders of those who became her friends and not just people who received mail.

Beside the large window in her office, Snowman Avenue greets visitors. Besides ornaments, snow people dot the room on shelves, furniture and even the beautiful hardwood floor. Red and white candy canes and peppermints, plus some added carolers, and even mounted ice skates brighten the room.

The massive windows in the living room allow natural lighting to enhance an army of nutcrackers and the almost life-size Santa and Mrs. Claus stationed beside a giant tree. Tiny villages transform the atmosphere into the simpler times of small towns, and some feature animal scenes.

Even with fewer decorations in the dining room, Janice adds her personal touch of Christmas dishes and a small white tree. With a welcoming table, she can entertain guests any time, but her favorite activity of the season remains her open house. Of course, in the kitchen, the tree contains food-related ornaments. The bathroom includes gingerbread houses and figures with other small touches. Every room leaves no doubt — Christmas is alive and well in the Campbell home.

Outdoors, Janice fills her yard with lights, blow-up displays, cute wooden cutouts and more. One of her favorites, two 8-foot-tall wooden soldiers, guard the house. "I went in a Home Depot, and they had the soldiers at the entrance. The woman who made them happened to be in the store that day," Janice recalled. "I offered to buy them after Christmas. The manager agreed at a reasonable price, but the woman shamed him because he intended to throw them away. He gave them to me for nothing."

Janice enjoys creating scenes in her yard and installed extra outlets to support her Christmas wonderland. The yard and open house allow her to give back to friends, family and community members who drive by to see everything. "It's like icing on a cake," she shared. "I get joy watching the joy on their faces."

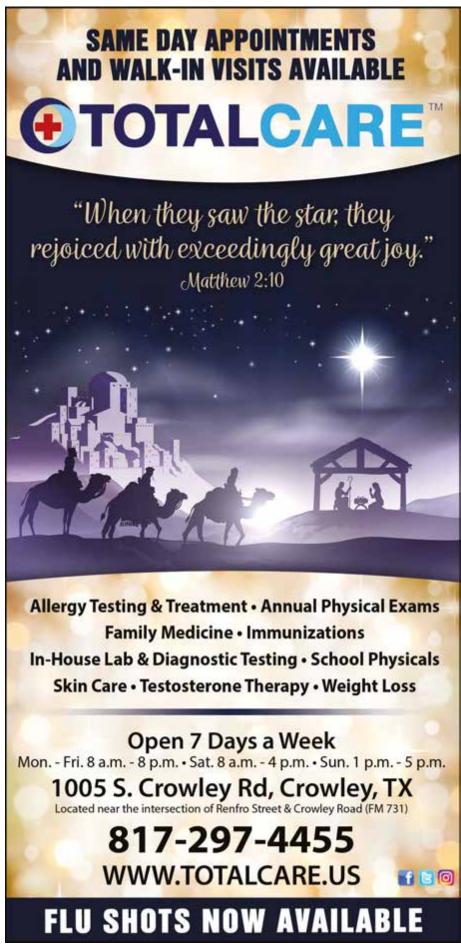

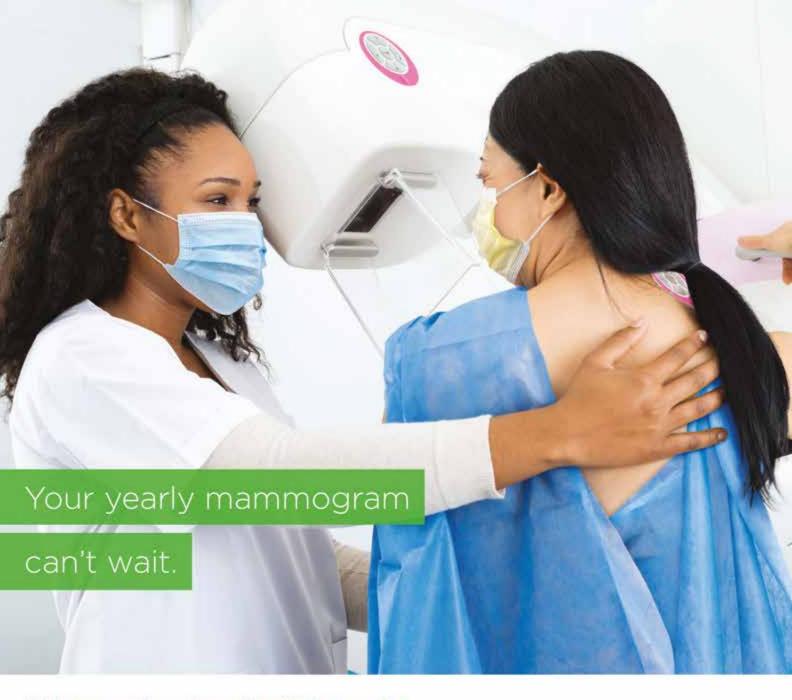

Each year, on the day of her open house, Janice takes whatever family members join her out to breakfast. "It gives us time to think through everything. We work from a list, making it a family event," she said. "I make some things ahead of time and freeze them." Although she doesn't know from year-to-year who will come to help, she always counts on family members to show up. She expects nothing in return from visitors, although she allowed one neighbor to make a special dish one year. "It's my gift to those I love," Janice explained.

For the kids, she buys inexpensive mugs and fills them with hot chocolate mix and a mint spoon. They all respect her wishes not to touch breakable objects, including the train that runs around one tree. She enjoys sitting with the children and running the train as their eyes sparkle with delight.

All year long, Janice volunteers in Burleson. Involved with Russell Farm, she helps with the children's program and other events, knows some of the history and works in the community garden. After harvesting, she delivers produce to Harvest House and Promise. "It got me out and working outside," she stated. "But Pam and Mary Ann have become good friends."

In addition, Janice volunteers at First Baptist Church and Burleson Visitors Center and Museum, Involved with Eumathian Women's Club, Bible study and other church activities, she stays busy. Never too busy for her four children, 10 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren, she looks forward to spending time with them and giving back to so many people who enrich her life daily. As she shares her love of Christmas, friends and family, she hopes it encourages others to do the same. NOW

Crumbl Cookies

– By Lisa Bell

Crumbl Cookies 140 NW John Jones Dr. Burleson, TX 76028 (682) 200-3423

Walk into Crumbl Cookies in Burleson and breathe deeply. The smell of cookies baking delights the nose, muddling senses with sweetness, while workers busily create a delectable treat. "If you can't decide which one to try, I recommend a six-pack with one of each flavor," said Morgan Bradshaw, co-owner with his wife, Amber, and brother-in-law, Jordan Phillips.

The unique bakery makes only cookies and belongs to a national franchise that started in Logan, Utah, four years ago. Within three years, they had 100 stores across the country.

Joining didn't come easy for the three co-owners in Burleson. "It took almost a year for approval," Amber shared.

While visiting family, she wanted to check out the cookie place she heard so much about. "I love baking," she admitted. "When I walked through their door, I smelled cookies. Amazing, unique atmosphere — I loved it. I thought it'd be fun to bring back to Burleson."

After returning home, where they moved with his job three years ago, Amber convinced Morgan. They added her brother, Jordan, and began the arduous process for approval in August 2020, finally opening in June 2021. Since then, the community welcomed and encouraged the trio.

"I'm not the baker," Morgan admitted, sporting a broad smile. "I just make sure she has everything she needs."

"He makes things happen," Amber said. "Jordan takes care of the finances and marketing."

When Crumbl Cookies first opened, they offered only chocolate chip but soon added the sugar cookie. As people asked for other flavors, they developed recipes for common cookies and unique tastes. Although the company now has 170 variations, they offer only six each week, with four rotating. Chocolate chip and sugar cookies, always available, join a variety of options like coconut lime, golden Oreo, cornbread cookies with butter and honey on top and others. On Sunday evenings, fans wait expectantly for a social media announcement to hit the Crumbl Cookie app, showing the week's offerings.

"WHEN I WALKED THROUGH THEIR DOOR, I SMELLED COOKIES. AMAZING, UNIQUE ${\tt ATMOSPHERE-ILOVED\ IT.\ I\ THOUGHT\ IT'D}$ BE FUN TO BRING BACK TO BURIESON "

Fun and sometimes surprising flavors amaze Amber and Morgan, but she loves letting customers watch the process. From the front entrance, highlighted by the famous pink wall with black lettering and company logo, anyone can watch as she and employees mix, scoop, bake and decorate each cookie.

"We have science behind making the cookie taste great and artistic touches to look unique," Morgan shared. "We use only fresh ingredients and make everything from scratch."

Crumbl Cookies in Burleson sells quantities of one, four, six or 12 cookies, and milk. They also offer catering for full-sized or minis. Stop by or order on the app or website. Use curbside pickup or delivery, and customers can request cookies shipped directly to their home from the corporate office.

"Cut into pieces and share," Amber encouraged. In fact, they sell a special cookie cutter that divides one cookie into four or eight pieces. "The idea is bringing families and friends together over a box of the best cookies in the world."

To support the community, they do fundraisers for all the area schools and donate weekly to Crowley House of Hope and Burleson Harvest House. Amber admitted their five children are as much a part of the business as they are. Who wouldn't want to end the school day — or any day — with freshly baked cookies? NOW

Tiny warrior, Peter Sterrett, helps raise awareness for childhood cancer. His mother, Paulina Sterrett, said, "He had a crazy start to life." Born three weeks early on March 12, 2020, at 11:30 p.m., premature labor caused by a car wreck, his life began as the world halted. With his inability to breathe, they suspected underdeveloped lungs, but discovered a malignant tumor in his throat. "When everything broke down, God got us through it," Paulina expressed.

Paulina looks back and declares the events blessings. "With everything shut down, we didn't have to worry about work. Family and friends had nowhere to go, giving them freedom to watch our daughter." Beating cancer, Peter wears an endearing smile. "He's such a little blessing. We see good even in the bad."

The holidays can be stressful for many. For Kim Isbell, cooking often relieves that stress and allows her time to create scrumptious meals to satisfy her family. Most of her recipes are discovered in family cookbooks, including some from her great-grandmother. "I am hoping to make a recipe book for my kids and grandkids, so one day, they can have the memories I have," Kim said.

Kim's love of cooking began at the age of 9 when she watched her grandmother in the kitchen. "I loved watching her take leftovers and make a completely new dish," Kim said. Sharing favorite recipes has always been a family affair. "I have two adult daughters who both enjoy cooking. I love to get in the kitchen and cook with them." Now Harvest House began with the vision of the Burleson Ministerial Alliance in 1984 when a holiday event served 26 families. "It has grown into a true community organization," Director Jennifer Woods explained. "Burleson is a generous city. The need for Harvest House is greater than ever, and the community keeps providing.

"Today we are an independent, faith-based, nonprofit organization. We have nine board members who give generously of themselves. You may find them here volunteering their time. We provide food, clothing and financial assistance, but a major goal we have is restoration. We want to help individuals and families get back on their feet."

Part of what they do is getting to the root of their subjects' problems. "Not long ago, we had a man who came by several times asking for assistance with his mortgage," Jennifer said. "He was concerned about losing his home. When we finally asked why he was having trouble working, he said it was because his truck would not run. Once we found out the real problem was his truck, we were able to help get it running, and he was able to get back to work and pay his mortgage. We have found it helps to build relationships with the people we serve."

With her previous nonprofit experience, Harvest House has been a great fit for Jennifer. She has served as director since 2016. "I am originally from Minnesota, but I have been in this area since 1997, when I moved to Fort Worth. I worked for the YMCA for four years, then became the training and events director for Big Brothers Big Sisters before the opportunity to work for Harvest House became available. My husband and I had moved here. We went to church here, and I wanted to be a part of the Burleson community. I actually went to the Chamber of Commerce and asked if they knew of any nonprofit organizations that might be hiring, and the Harvest House opportunity had just become available."

The COVID-19 pandemic affected everyone in some way or another during the past year, and organizations like Harvest House are no exception. "Not only have our clients been affected, but so have our volunteers. We are volunteer driven, and there has been a decrease in the number of those who come in to help. The community constantly answers our call when we need help. Further, while we still see people who are unable to work because of reasons unrelated to the pandemic, we are seeing more people from what is traditionally considered the middle class, who have never been out of work, now having to seek assistance."

Harvest House has a lot to offer, and one of their primary offerings is food distribution. Their pantry looks like a small grocery store, and they even provide shopping carts. "We are a 'choice pantry," Jennifer explained. "We found that providing a box of food that we select for our clients may not meet their needs and may also lead to items being wasted. For example, peanut butter may be a good staple for many families, but if someone in the family is allergic to peanuts, the peanut butter will probably not help them and may be thrown away. Our clients can shop in our pantry just as if they were in the grocery store. They have choices."

In addition to the food pantry, Harvest House also provides a clothing resale shop. "We provide vouchers for our clients to use that are like a non-cash value card. If they want to purchase some things that exceed the value of the voucher, they can at a very moderate cost. Any excess money goes to support operational costs," Jennifer said.

Harvest House has its largest annual fundraiser during the fall each year. The Harvest Feast features entertainment, such as comedians, magicians, music and speakers. There is a gourmet dinner and auction, as well as a number of sponsorship opportunities. This year's event will even include a raffle for a new car.

The community also supports Harvest House through food drives in the schools. And Harvest House supports school children with its Little Red School House program, where they provide backpacks and practical clothing items for those in need.

The thing Jennifer loves about her job is the people Harvest House serves. "We want people to be seen. They are valuable regardless of their current status. We love to see people start feeling better about themselves. They are valuable to God, and they are valuable to us." NOW

Big Personality

WITHERSUSPAULDINGS

This Hill Country town may be small, but it boasts some of the biggest personalities in Texas. While not named after him, the community was the home of Lyndon B. Johnson, the 36th president of the United States of America. The Lyndon B. Johnson National Historic Park, located in both Johnson City and neighboring Stonewall, is only one interesting part of this town.

A city twinkling with small-town personality, come visit and explore all the hidden treasures the charming community has to offer. From wildflowers in the spring to historic sites, wine trails to Christmas lights, Johnson City has something for the entire family. Johnson City's convenient proximity to the state capital keeps you connected while still affording the benefits of small-town living. In the words of Lyndon B. Johnson, "All the world is welcome here."

Full of history and family adventure, everyone will want to visit President Johnson's boyhood home and ranch. The home of Texas legends, take in the Sauer-Beckmann Living History Farm or the Behrens Cabin.

Learn while having fun at the Science Mill. A family destination, they offer a fun, interactive learning environment for all ages. Through cutting-edge, technology-based exhibits, games and programs, the Science Mill expands students' understanding and appreciation of science in their everyday lives. By igniting their curiosity and inspiring them to pursue post-secondary education, the Science Mill experience starts students on the path to a lifelong career in science, technology, engineering and math (STEM).

While in Johnson City, explore the great outdoors at Pedernales Falls State Park. You can camp, hike, mountain bike, picnic, geocache, bird-watch and ride horses. On the river, you can swim, wade, tube or fish. Look for local wildlife and plants at the bird blind and butterfly garden. It's the perfect way to spend time outdoors with your family or friends.

Local shops offer an array of items, including specialty items unique to Johnson City. Our art galleries are unrivaled in the area. We have several wineries, breweries and distilleries. Your journey across the 290 Texas Wine Trail starts here and works west to Fredericksburg, Texas.

The Exotic Resort Zoo & Safari Cabins is a wildlife park where you can go on a guided safari. Things are always wild and fun for all ages. With art, science, history, farms, outdoor activities and plenty of shopping, everyone in the family can enjoy the trip. Iconic restaurants wait to serve your new favorite dish, featuring a memorable experience different from the ordinary chain restaurant. Stay with us at a cozy hotel or one of our hospitable bed-and-breakfasts for that "not in the big city" feel.

During Christmastime, Johnson City features Light Spectacular. The community transforms itself from a slow-paced, presidential hometown nestled on the banks of the Pedernales River, into a bright beacon of light like a guiding star, welcoming visitors with good old-fashioned Christmas cheer. Included on multiple top Christmas towns in Texas lists, consider making this a memory of a lifetime or a regular tradition for your family.

Whether you decide to stay for a weekend, a week or a lifetime, come see why Johnson City is the Crossroads to Texas Hill Country. It's a trip you may want to repeat often. NOW
