Editor's Note

Hello, Midlothian!

As a teenager visiting my grandparents, a trip to the grocery became necessary. The only vehicle was Papa's truck. Grandma couldn't drive, but I had my license. After a morning of begging for permission to drive it, she finally agreed. Driving away, I could see her standing on the porch with worry etched across her face. When I returned after shopping, she was still standing in the same spot. Running up to the truck, she covered my face with kisses saying, "Oh Baby Jo, I was so scared! I'm so glad you're OK."

I knew Grandma loved me and there was nothing I could do that would ever change that. Everyone needs to feel that type of love. If there is no one in your life to love you so generously, then give your love generously to someone else. It works both ways.

Happy Valentine's Day!

Soaring HIGH AND

— By Betty Tryon

Flying high and solo is as close to true freedom as a pilot can get. Omri Kalinsky, a member of Texas Soaring Association, has the opportunity to experience that freedom whenever he wants to get in one of his two glider planes. "Going to fly is what I get up for in the morning," he said. "It's very relaxing and helps me clear my head from the mundane and annoying."

Omri is a computer programmer, but as an expert in gliders, he spends the majority of his free time at TSA. Born in Israel, his family relocated to America when he was 8 years old. He moved from Frisco, to Midlothian a year ago to be closer to the airport.

Flying has always captured Omri's interest. "As a kid I was into flying, and when I turned 23, I learned how to fly single engine airplanes," he remarked. It became boring to him after a couple of years, and the expense of flying became burdensome since it prevented him from being in the air as much as he wanted. "With a powered airplane, most of what you do is fly in a straight line. It's more of trying to get somewhere as opposed to the joy of flying," he said.

When he tried gliding, Omri became instantly hooked. "When I moved to Texas in 2005, I needed to do something to occupy my time. So, I went online and found local places to soar and started taking lessons," he explained. Learning how to fly a glider was relatively easy for Omri. "What I already knew from power flying applied to glider flying. There is one big difference — flight controls on a glider are far more sensitive than on an airplane. You need more rudder, which you control with your feet. A rudder is a moveable surface at the back of a glider. In an airplane you kinda use it here and there, but in a glider you use it all the time."

The basic aerodynamics and design of a glider and airplane are the same in that they both have wings, a fuselage, control surfaces and landing gear. "The wings on a glider are a lot longer, and the tail is typically a little longer," Omri explained. "The aerodynamic effects are the same, but they are somewhat exaggerated because of the difference in proportion of a glider, which is why you need more rudder."

Another notable difference between the two is that airplanes have an engine, and a glider does not. "Typically you can't get up in the air by yourself with a glider because of no engine," Omri clarified. "We do aero-towing, which is taking a standard powered airplane, particularly one with a large engine, putting a 200-foot rope at the tail end and attaching it to the nose of your glider. The airplane pilot then takes off and pulls the glider up to a certain height, and then you release. That's how you get airborne. There are other ways to get airborne, but that is the most common."

Since a glider has no engine, rising air currents are what keeps it going once it is in the air. A glider will always descend. While in the air, the pilot has to find an air current that is rising faster than he is descending in order to stay up. But that rising air is not always there. "The joy and challenge of it all is to find the rising air and use it to your advantage to stay up longer or go farther or faster," Omri elaborated.

Before a flight, Omri checks the forecast about air currents. "They are reasonably accurate but can be dead wrong," he stated. "I use aviator- or glider-specific weather forecasts and can get information on the Internet. If there is no rising air, then you know that if you go up, you'll come back down in 15 minutes. On a good day, you can stay up for maybe four or five hours."

Strength. Performance. Passion.

He has a moving map GPS for gliders and communicates through radio. He also flies under visual flight rules, which are obviously to not fly into clouds, fog, snow or heavy rain.

Most people unfamiliar with gliders would assume the wind is the most important thing. But it's not the wind, it's mostly the sun. "The sun beating down on the earth causes thermals," Omri remarked. "The sun warms up the air near the ground and, basically by the principal of buoyancy, the warmer air becomes less dense and then rises. And that's what we're riding — those bubbles of warm buoyant air called thermals. That is why the summertime is a lot better for us than wintertime."

Omri gets to share his knowledge about gliding in conjunction with TSA. The organization is a 501(c)(3), and they have an educational charter that enables them to give glider rides to local Boy Scout groups. "Some Boy Scout groups earn their aviation merit badges through us," he shared. "TSA has a youth program through our club. We help them learn how to fly, and they help out with chores on the ground at the airport."

TSA has a private airport here in Midlothian which is convenient, because not all glider clubs have their own private airport. "To my knowledge, we are the second largest glider club in the country, and most people seem to think we are the nicest one in terms of what we have. We have nice facilities, club gliders that can be rented and hangers." As the membership chairman, Omri notes they have 175 members, and the club has been around since shortly after WWII.

Omri has participated in the racing events that TSA offers and has won three of their Labor Day races. The annual Labor Day Race is divided into several classes depending upon the performance of the rider. Omri is the proud owner of the Flying Pig Award, which is presented in the shape of a pink flying pig. "I won in the Sports Class division, which is for low-performance gliders. At the time I was flying an older glider. The higher performance gliders received a Rocket Ship Award. We also compete in regional, national and world contests."

As a sport, soaring is fun and requires wisdom and skill from the pilot. "There's nothing inherently dangerous at all about it," Omri declared. "If you know what you're doing and stay conservative, you can be safe. It's about making good decisions." NOW

Rings of Life and Love

— By Betty Tryon

Sometimes a small act of kindness can be so big, it literally fills the recipient's heart with gratitude so powerful, the tale must be told. Margaret Bendor-Samuel has such a story to share. She experienced this generosity of spirit from a total stranger who today remains anonymous. A wedding ring that had lasted through 10 years in the Amazon was lost. "This ring had gone all around the world with me and very, very seldom did I take it off," Margaret shared. "It is really a symbol of all our partnership together."

Every married woman has a special connection with her wedding ring, but for Margaret, it is her history with David — her husband of 58 years and their three children, Peter, Joy and Rachel — which makes her ring priceless. Both born in England, Margaret has known David's family since childhood. Their love story had a few bumps as all love stories do. Before their engagement, David went into the Armed Forces. After being discharged, he worked as a banker. Meanwhile Margaret became a teacher. During their courtship, Margaret felt a calling to become a missionary. "As a child we went through WWII. Our house was bombed and very badly damaged," Margaret recalled. "I remember standing in the ruins and making a promise to God. The missionary call came out of that as a teenager."

This decision of hers caused some consternation in David. "I had to be certain in my mind that I wanted to be committed to the mission field. For a period of four years," David recollected, "I wrestled with the idea of missionary work until God made it very clear." As soon as he was sure about it, he felt free to find Margaret and resume their friendship. He found her enrolled in the same Bible school he was in. Earning his degree in theology, the couple became engaged and joined Wycliffe Bible Translators and ultimately served with them for 50 years. "We were assigned to Brazil to the Guajajara tribe, which is a tribe of Indians in the Amazon. We were a team. Margaret is gifted in areas I'm not." Two of their three children were born in Brazil and were reared as babies in the Amazon jungle. The third was born in England, their native land.

During their time with Wycliffe, Margaret and David had the opportunity to travel and serve in Africa, South America, Asia and Europe. However, they spent their longest amount of time as translators in Brazil. "It's always difficult learning a new language, especially when you have no one to help you," Margaret stated. "You have to hear the relevant sounds, so you can put it into an alphabet for them. The progress is very slow, because you've got to write the language down.” For 10 years, the Bendor-Samuels worked to lay the foundation for the translation of the Bible for the Guajajara tribe.

“We were a part of the community,” Margaret explained. There were no doctors or any medications, but there was malaria and tuberculosis in the tribe. “We were treating malaria the entire time we were there and had to wear clothes that covered us up to our necks. The mosquitoes would just bite and bite.” The missionary couple was under prophylaxis, so they were not infected. “We didn’t have windows, just holes in the wall and our mats were black with mosquitoes.” Of course living in the jungle they had additional concerns with the insects, snakes and scorpions.

Later in their career, David was called to Texas to a leadership position at Wycliffe International. That brought them to Midlothian to live. The day Margaret lost her ring was just like any other ordinary day of running errands. She didn't realize she had lost it until going to bed that night. "I had lost quite a bit of weight because of a medical problem, but I never thought my fingers would get smaller," Margaret declared. That day she had gone for a mile walk, visited the hair salon and Wal-Mart. "As I climbed into bed I noticed that my wedding ring was missing." Alarmed, she got up and began to search their home.

David wanted her to wait until morning. "As we were getting into bed she wanted me to find it right then and there," he stated. Noticing she was not going to be deterred, he joined her in the search.

"During the search I thought, The ring is old and has diamonds that have seen better days," Margaret shared. "I suddenly realized that it was far more valuable to me than the price it might have fetched. It was not exactly a thing of beauty, but it was worth more than its weight in gold."

Devastated that the ring did not turn up immediately, Margaret and David searched high, low and in likely and unlikely places. Margaret admitted they even did a bit of spring cleaning before it was all over. "We were praying and asking the Lord to help us find it," she said. "I usually take it for granted. It's precious as a symbol of our commitment to one another and union."

"It's the symbol of all of that being together," David shared. "It's impossible to communicate how very precious that togetherness is when you've done so many things together."

After searching every place she could think of, the next day their daughter contacted the beauty salon and Margaret finally gave in to David's insistence that she call Wal-Mart. "I felt it was a hopeless cause," she reasoned. "Who would hand in a gold ring? I nearly quit when the phone continued to ring in the Customer Service department, but the kind lady who first answered my call interrupted and promised to put me through to the manager's office. I described my ring and was told there had been one handed in that fitted that description. I was choked with emotion. My daughter and I hurried down and a smiling young lady showed us the ring. It was indeed mine!" Too choked up to speak, all Margaret and her daughter could do was to just embrace the lady. It turns out that a Good Samaritan had found the ring in the parking lot and turned it in.

"Three cheers and thank you to that kind person who handed it in," Margaret enthused. "Three cheers and thank you to the honest Midlothian Wal-Mart office, and thank you, Heavenly Father! You told us in the Bible that you like to give good gifts to those who ask." The Bendor-Samuels brought life from the Bible to others as missionaries and love to each other bound together in their ring. NOW

Pretty Practical and Playful

— By Zachary R. Urquhart

The average American moves every few years. New jobs, new families, changes of scenery — there are many reasons people move so often. For Dustin and D’Vonne Ray, their latest move came out of necessity. D’Vonne grew up here, graduating from Midlothian High School in 1998. She earned an agriculture degree from Tarleton State University and taught science for several years. Dustin and D’Vonne met playing softball together almost a decade ago, and they have been married since 2008. They have five children — Ryder, Landri, Easton, Nolan and Liam. “When you have so many kids so quickly, you have to find a house big enough for your family,” she joked.

At Home With Dustin and D’Vonne Ray

Dustin grew up in Amarillo and joined the Navy after high school. He finished his stint in 2004 and moved to Arlington and then Midlothian. He graduated from Colorado Technical University in 2012, and is currently completing an MBA at Tarleton, while working full time as a customer service manager for an international electric company. “I work with certain accounts, and when they need service, I make sure we take good care of them,” he explained.

Dustin and D’Vonne built a house in Saddleback Creek Estates while they were planning their wedding. They lived in that home for about five years.

“The old neighborhood was great, but we had to move,” Dustin remarked. “That’s what happens when your family outgrows their house.”

Their old house was down the street from D'Vonne's sister, and their current home is around the corner from her brother. Dustin's family finally asked for a little consideration. "They said, 'You think you could move a little closer to us next time?'" he laughed.

"It was hard to find a house big enough for five kids," D'Vonne said. "We liked the old neighborhood, but the one thing we looked for was something not as spread out." They got an offer on their old house in three days, and were fortunate to find a new home quickly enough to move in right away. They ended up with a beautiful corner lot in Rosebud near the community park.

Arriving at their lot, the lush and spacious lawn invites guests and gives a first impression typical for the rest of the home. The foyer is uniquely round instead of squared, offering access to an office, living area, bedrooms and a dining room, which has been turned into a play area. "We aren't formal people, so we left this space open for a play area," Dustin acknowledged. "And it's big enough that the little ones can keep their bikes in here." Since he works from home, Dustin's office is both handsome and handy. "We replaced the old carpet with hardwood in the office and the playroom to give it a little different feel," he remarked.

Between the foyer and living room sits bedrooms for Landri and Liam. "She is all girl, all purple and all princess," D'Vonne commented. Landri's room is painted a light purple hue, complete with a large Princess Sophia wall decal. "The one thing we had to do when we moved in was paint. There were some interesting color choices," she continued.

“There were some bright purples and blues, but we let her go with this lighter purple.” Liam’s airplane-themed room is across the hall, complete with frames and propellers as wall decor.

At the end of the front entryway is a staircase leading to another play area and the other kids’ bedrooms. Five clocks adorn the walls, marking the dates and times of each child’s birth. “I like to tell people that she keeps buying broken clocks,” Dustin joked. In the common room upstairs, the family has multiple TVs, gaming consoles and plush couches for any watching or playing needs. “We figured having a couple of TVs would keep them from fighting over games and television,” Dustin explained. “D’Vonne does most of the decorating though.”

In addition to simple decorating, D’Vonne also built a large shelving unit for the play room. “I went and bought the wood, cut it, put it together and finished it,” she remarked. “Being an ag major, we had built things before. We used to use a hammer, but Dustin convinced me to get a nail gun for the project. It was awesome.” While most people these days have put together a shelf from one of the big box stores, D'Vonne's custom unit is beyond impressive. "I have thought about doing more of this type stuff as a job," she added, "once the kids get a little older."

The upstairs play room leads into Ryder's room and a room shared by the twins, Easton and Nolan. Ryder's room has a boating theme, and is off limits for the younger kids. "He has lots of boy stuff that the little ones just don't need to mess with," Dustin explained. One glance makes it obvious that Ryder really likes to fish, something he and Dustin do together whenever they can. "I really like being outdoors. Our favorite vacations are in our RV." The twins' room is superhero-themed with colorful posters on the walls.

Back downstairs, D'Vonne's style preferences really show through the design and ornamentation. “Just like the shelves I built, I really like a rustic feel,” she explained. “I introduced Dustin to it as well.” The living room is furnished with large leather sofas, and the television is situated between refinished shutters. “Most of what we have in the house is refinished furniture, a lot of which I buy at local flea markets,” she shared. Dustin and D’Vonne’s master bedroom is long with bay windows offering a view of a beautifully landscaped backyard. Sleek furniture gives the room a feel somewhere between traditional and contemporary. The room and bathroom are painted and trimmed in green and blue.

The kitchen is very open, with the sink in a granite island. “We did a few things when we moved in, but the kitchen is probably next,” D’Vonne said. “We are thinking about upgrading all of the appliances and changing the colors.” The dining area features a high table, as well as more bay windows looking to the backyard, which may be their favorite part of the house.

“The lady we bought the house from had done a really good job out here. We’ve just added onto what she already did,” Dustin admitted.

Landscape areas, a dining set in the yard and a tetherball pole bring together prettification, practicality and play, which is just how they want it. As D’Vonne summed up, “We try to do everything together, and this house lets us do it.” NOW

Before You Tie the Knot

— By Shannon Pfaff

From the dress to the favors, the cake to the invitations, a wedding has many components that need to come together. There are countless options to choose from. You may find yourself overwhelmed trying to narrow down the scope of your choices in order to help you decide on the individual pieces of your big day. A great way to do that is by choosing a theme for your wedding.

A theme ties all of your ideas together, so your ceremony and reception flow with each other. You can choose a song, season, pattern, color, etc. around which to build your wedding. What type of wedding do you want to have? Would you prefer a more modern wedding or something rustic? Maybe your dream-come-true wedding is a fairy-tale style affair. Perhaps you would like to create your special day around your favorite color. Maybe you have already found the perfect dress, and you'd like to design the wedding around its style. The theme of your wedding can be anything you desire it to be.

Choosing a theme can also be a creative way to illustrate who you and your husband-to-be are as a couple. Are you an adventurous pair? Did you meet in an unusual way? Do you have a mutual passion, such as music or food? The things you enjoy together can create a unique theme. Your individual family heritage can also be a beautiful backdrop for your wedding.

Once you have decided on your theme, you can have the wedding professionals you employ help you incorporate that theme into each aspect of your wedding. When you are choosing your wedding gown, a bridal consultant can help you with dress options that coordinate with your theme. They can also help you with attire options for the wedding party that will complement your dress. The consultant can also advise you on hairstyles and accessory choices for your gown. Your hairstylist can offer hair options, as well as showing you how to pair those options with any desired accessories.

If your theme is related to color, a florist can help you incorporate that shade into flower arrangements, bouquets and table settings. Even if your theme is

You will want to choose a simple, A-line dress or a ball gown to complement your theme. Consider dramatic lighting for your venue, such as candlelight or tiny lights strung across the ceiling or around potted trees. Formal wedding cakes are generally elegant with multiple layers to create a focal point for your reception.

Vintage-style

If you love the style of eras gone by, then a vintage wedding could be perfect for you. Selecting a genuinely vintage wedding dress allows you the opportunity to have a unique design versus a modern mass-produced dress. Family members may be a good source for vintage items to use for your decor. They may also be a valuable source for vintage jewelry. Lace can add a vintage touch to your decor and your attire. Keep the colors and decor simple to stay true to simpler times.

Rustic Chic

If you are looking for country elegance, a rustic wedding is a great option. Think barns, burlap and boots! For your venue, you could select a farm house, ranch, barn or a country pavilion. You could have the entire event outdoors, but make sure you make provisions for inclement weather. Mason jars, hand-painted signs and simple flowers can create lovely centerpieces for your reception. You will have several options for your dress, because you can add rustic touches to any gown you choose.

However you decide to define your special day, there will be no shortage of wonderful options to create your perfect wedding. The wedding professionals you choose will provide options and show you examples to help you along the way. # A Family Cut

Even during her years in high school, Sherri Bunch invested time and energy into learning how to do one of the things she loves — doing hair. She now has 19 years' experience. "I went to cosmetology school through a vocational program at my high school in Red Oak, but since the cosmetology program was in Lancaster, I was bused there for three hours every day," Sherri recalled. She had her license by the time she graduated and even took state boards a month before graduation.

The irony in light of Sherri's success in the field is that she wasn't quite sure cosmetology was what she wanted for a career. "I have three cousins who went through the same program in Duncanville, and I was their guinea pig. So, I decided to try it thinking if I didn't want to do it as a living, I could do it as a way to get through college," she shared. "I've now been doing hair so long for some people that it's like they are my family. It's really neat." She noted that many of the kids she did hair for in kindergarten are now in college.

Sherri has lived in Midlothian for 11 years, and prior to Studio 618 Salon, she cut hair in the same building for a salon under a different name for a year-and-a-half. The owner wanted to sell the business, so Sherri went in with Samantha Burkett to purchase the business together. There are now a total of five stylists. "We have a good mix of talents," Sherri stated. "I just like it that anyone can come in and no matter whose chair they sit in, they will be happy. We all work well together with no stress, no drama."

Business NOW

In addition to Sherri and Samantha, the stylists include Audrea, Holly and Lorrie. They all have special areas of focus with their work. Audrea is good with all the colors including Ombré, and Sherri is a color specialist. Samantha's focus is with extensions. Holly and Lorrie are really great with men's and women's haircuts and styles. The color product brand the salon uses most often is Rusk because of its marine technology, organic ingredients and its resistance to fading.

"We like to build relationships with our clients, and many times an entire family will come in together."

In addition to cut, color and style, Studio 618 Salon also offers facial waxing, perms and a popular procedure called keratin smoothing treatments. The business offers specials through its Facebook page, the website and through NOW Magazines.

"We really try to be a family salon," Sherri remarked. "We like to build relationships with our clients, and many times an entire family will come in together." The salon has medium price points to keep the services affordable, so people can come more often. Another reason to choose Studio 618 is the years of experience Sherri brings to the business. "I am serious about my work, and I take it very seriously that what I do affects people and how they view themselves. I like being able to make people feel good. Sometimes I have clients who come in upset and not happy with themselves, but giving them a new look makes them feel so much better. It gives them a new sense of confidence." Come to Studio 618 and bring the entire family for a confidence booster and a new haircut. NOW

15 Great Ideas for Your Tax Refund

When Uncle Sam gives back, make the most of it. Instead of spending your tax refund on some new gadget or other source of instant gratification, consider improving your life, well-being and even your financial future with these investing ideas for your tax return this year.

Invest in Your Future

- Save for retirement — Contribute to your existing IRA or start a new one.
- Pay down/refinance your mortgage — Pay off your home sooner or reduce your monthly payments.
- Start a rainy day fund — Open a high-yield savings account to earn interest and still have cash for emergencies.
- Save for your kids' education — Put your refund in a college savings plan to prepare for tuition and related expenses.
- Create a will — Ensure your legacy and see that your loved ones are cared for.

Invest in Yourself

- Get a gym membership — Get healthy now, and you will look and feel better.
- Start a sunny day fund — Not all funds have to be for emergencies. Plan a vacation and have it paid for before you go.
- Adopt a pet — Studies show that pets reduce stress and elevate moods. Bring a little love into your life.

• Attend a college course — Next to a healthy body, a healthy mind is vital to a happy life.

• Take a healthy cooking class — Combine learning with a healthy lifestyle choice and live happier, longer.

Invest in the World

- Give to a charity — Support that group you have always wanted to.
- Invest in a socially responsible manner — Ask your advisor about socially responsible or “green” investments.
- Go energy efficient — Save money on energy expenses through home renovations, a new hybrid car or joining an energy co-op.
- Join a food co-op — Support local farmers and enjoy healthy fruits, vegetables, meats and dairy products produced right in your own community.
- Grow your own garden — Reduce your carbon footprint, and save money, by growing healthy fruits and veggies in your backyard.

Make the most of your tax refund. Talk to your financial advisor about these and other investment opportunities. NOW

In the Kitchen With Autum Awalt

— By Betty Tryon

To know Autum Awalt is to know sweetness. She has a particular fondness for baking. “I have taught a cookie decorating class,” she shared. “I really enjoy baking cookies, cakes, pies and breads. There is just something about a sweet treat especially when you share them with others.” As a working mom with two daughters, it is a priority for her to give her family a home-cooked meal every day.

Food is her inspiration as she finds and shares new recipes. Autum enjoys hosting themed social gatherings with great food as the main event. Part of her joy of cooking and sharing her enthusiasm comes with teaching others, especially her daughters, how to cook and bake. NOW
