It's that time of year!

Exercise has always been a challenge for me. I enjoy hiking or walking around areas with new and interesting things to explore, but I get bored very quickly doing the same thing over and over, even if I know that it is good for my health. I guess that is why I fancy gardening and yard work. In the garden, the possibilities are endless.

My daughter, who loves the gym, shared with me that gardening is not really a great workout. So, last year, I decided to figure out a way to get a good cardio workout in my yard.

I really wanted for my arms to get stronger, so I decided I would begin with weed eating. I found a weed eater that uses an electric battery. Years ago, I had tried to use an electric weed eater, but it just had no power. To my delight, my weed eater can easily cut through weeds that are 2 feet tall, and it is so lightweight! I love that I don't have to deal with gasoline, and I adore how quiet it runs. Last fall, I decided to try an electric mower. Could it be powerful enough for my 2-acre yard and even the pasture when it gets high? I am thrilled to say, my mower can cut weeds 4 feet high with zero problem, all while being self-propelled and much less noisy than gasoline. The batteries run for plenty long because, so far, I have never outlasted my equipment. What a blessing new technology has brought into my life!

Have a lovely April, my fellow Waxahachians!

"I mean, no matter how hard a show is, no matter how many other things I've got going in my life, I always end up auditioning for another show."

Sometimes people can overlook the pleasure of community theater because of the moniker community. Kevin Roberts encourages people not to discount the Waxahachie Community Theatre. “My one word of caution to anyone considering joining in the theater: Once you get involved, you may get hooked. I started in 2015, and I’ve probably done about 15 shows at this point,” he laughed. “Being involved in theater, you can access a sense of community and unity instantly. For those wanting to enjoy some quality entertainment, we bring that. For those wanting to find a sense of family and companionship, the process of creating a show can build relationships and memories for a lifetime. I have made a ton of friends at WCT.”

Making Commitment

— By Susan Simmons

In 2011, Kevin Roberts was 17 years old when his parents, who were missionaries, moved him and his siblings to Waxahachie from Latvia, in Northern Europe. “My mother is the one who actually got me involved with WCT by recommending I audition for a part in The King and I,” Kevin shared. “She has played many roles throughout the years, even before I was involved. My father joins in on occasion, as well. Our whole family has a penchant for the spotlight I suppose,” Kevin chuckled.

Before Kevin auditioned for his first play in 2015, he had no performing experience. Growing up in Europe, where live theater is viewed almost like Texans view football, he was fascinated with performing. “I was always very interested in acting and singing and even a little bit of dancing,” Kevin confided. “So, when my mother suggested I audition for the part of Lun Tha in the King and I, I took her up on it. I was incredibly nervous when auditioning, but the fellow actors and volunteers were super relaxed and lighthearted about the whole process. It ended up being a super fun night, getting to know a bunch of great, new people.” Kevin got the part of Lun Tha, and he still enjoys telling the hilarious story of what happened during the performance.

“Every major musical we do takes place in the Chautauqua Auditorium. It’s a very interesting building with a lot of history, but for a show with a cast of 25 to 40, there’s not enough room to fit everyone inside. For this reason, the cast sits outside the back of the theater waiting for their cues. On the day of our performance, a major cold front moved into town. With it, came a massive, unyielding downpour. A group of clever engineers devised a series of tarps along the whole back of the theater, allowing the cast somewhere to sit safe from the deluge. The only issue was, since the rain was so unyielding, the tarps began to pool and sag. So, one of my most amusing memories was running, after my song, from the stage, down the little stairway, out the back door, to our tent city, to immediately start pushing pools of water off the tarps to prevent them from collapsing. I remember being freezing cold, since my costume consisted of nothing but a vest and a pair of baggy harem pants. I wasn't even nervous to sing my songs, since I was so excited to get back on to the semi-heated stage. It sounds rough, but everyone was having a great time together through the struggle." Even though the members of WCT love the fresh air that the Chautauqua offers, they are looking for support to get their own theater building.

Sharing moments of struggle and triumph with good friends is what Kevin enjoys most about WCT. "It is such a great group of people. Sometimes, the theater process can be very challenging with long nights and inclement weather, among other trials. But going through those things with the people of WCT, turns it all into good memories. I mean, no matter how hard a show is, no matter how many other things I've got going in my life, I always end up auditioning for another show," Kevin said with a grin.

"It's so hard to choose a favorite performance, since most of the shows I've been in carry a huge pile of awesome memories. I've done a ton of performances, but due to my singing background, I suppose the musicals I've done hold a special place in my heart. My top two roles I've enjoyed were Lord Farquaad from Shrek the Musical and the Beast, from Beauty and the Beast. The two characters are almost perfect opposites. Farquaad is loud, brash and hilarious — an absurd villain character with some really fun songs. The Beast was a challenging role, requiring a lot more depth. Both shows had such amazing casts to work with and a fabulous director to bring the whole vision together," Kevin said. "The end result of those two shows, I believe, were some of the most impressive work that the WCT had ever assembled. Being a part of that was a pleasure."

Kevin urges everyone to explore the Waxahachie Community Theatre and find out how it can add joy and pleasure to their lives. "There are plenty of shoes to fill at the theater. Even for the actors, we assist in stage construction, painting, setup and teardown — all the little things that you don't notice on stage, but would certainly notice if they were missing," Kevin said. Among the options for those who are not interested in acting are stage crew, stage construction and orchestra. They also need people to sell tickets and concessions.

"Having a place to be involved in something truly bigger than myself is a challenge to find," Kevin pointed out. "WCT is a great opportunity to work closely with other people to create something wonderful as a group." Waxahachie Community Theatre brings people in the community together and offers a fun and affordable night of great entertainment. As the spring season gets underway, Kevin Roberts is busy getting ready for his next big part! NOW

Michael Butz has always made service to others a priority in his life. Years ago, as a young, single father of two in Abilene, Texas, he worked hard at night and went to college during the day to climb the corporate ladder as an environmental health, safety and security manager to a job that would allow him to spend more time with his children. He quickly achieved his career goal and dedicated the rest of his time to raising his children. Then, in 2011, he reconnected with a lifelong friend from elementary school, April, and it wasn't long before they decided to get married. April's career as a master social worker allowed her to transfer to Dallas, so Michael found a job at Magnablend Chemical Plant as an EHS&S manager overseeing the regulations for the growing company.

After settling in Waxahachie, the couple wanted to add more children to their family. "When we learned that over 400,000 children are in the foster care system in the USA, we both knew that it was the path God had laid for us," Michael said. After three years of fostering many children, in 2018 the Butzes adopted a 2-year-old son and are in the process of adding a 1-year-old daughter. "It has been an experience of a lifetime. I wouldn't trade it for anything," Michael confided. "As we became more familiar with the foster care system, we saw up close and personal so many people who needed help. The more we became involved, the more we felt an urgent need to help others. It just kind of grows on you," Michael shared.

When Magnablend was purchased by a large corporation, Michael decided to leave. "I loved working for Magnablend because it was a family run business, where I had the opportunity to work directly with the people. I just didn't want to go back to that corporate world," Michael said. "So, I left the company and decided to finish law school. Throughout my career as an EHS&S manager, I had worked directly with working people. Many times, I witnessed firsthand how they struggled with various legal problems and couldn't afford an attorney. I knew law school would enable me to make a real difference in people's lives."

After graduating from law school, Michael was accepted into the ECL program in Dallas, which helped him get his business started. In return, he did some pro bono work for people who couldn't afford an attorney. "I have handled a wide variety of cases, ranging from family law, divorce and custody cases to wills and estate planning," he said. "When I went to law school, I had no idea how rewarding it would be to be able to help people solve their problems. It is critical for people to have a trusted, competent person in their corner. Perhaps God has led me to where I am today, so that I can be that person."

"When I went to law school, I had no idea how rewarding it would be to be able to help people solve their problems."

As the Butz Law Firm has grown, Michael continues to help those who cannot afford help. "I am grateful for all the clients who can afford their legal fees because they enable me to help the clients who cannot, and I work equally as hard for whoever I am representing," Michael said sincerely. "Our mission is to provide an honest, caring and experienced attorney who works hard on the behalf of every client." NOW

Zoomed In: By Susan Simmons The Ellis County Homeless Coalition

A big THANK YOU to The Ellis County Homeless Coalition who, with the help of groups, churches, businesses and individuals, provided safety, food and comfort to those without shelter during the historic freeze in February. A church service and a chili lunch was held on Sunday in the eating area of Comfort Suites for anyone who wanted to attend, and the homeless helped each other repair vehicles after eating. The ECHC is a community action group of concerned citizens and organizations dedicated to raising awareness, preventing homelessness and developing affordable housing in Ellis County. These dedicated people aim to arm Ellis County residents, who find themselves homeless, with the tools they need to disrupt the cycle of poverty and set them on a better path forward. Volunteers welcome!

In the Kitchen With
 BEVERLY MCMAHON
 — By Susan Simmons

When Beverly McMahon was a child, she loved being in the kitchen watching her mother cook. When she was 10 years old, her mother taught her how to bake scratch cornbread. “After that, I began experimenting on my own. I started with cookies and biscuits, and even when they didn’t come out perfect, everyone still ate them,” Beverly said with a laugh.

When she was 11, Beverly’s mother was in the hospital at Thanksgiving, and Beverly decided to cook Thanksgiving dinner just like her mother had always done. “I cooked seven cakes and six sweet potato pies, along with a ham and turkey and dressing with all the sides. My mother was so happy.” Today, Beverly’s kids own Fingers 2 Tha Bone BBQ in Waxahachie, and she just loves to be there helping in the kitchen. NOW
